What do you think of the English actor Tom Hiddleston?

I like him.

For one thing the man is very talented. I've seen him play Loki in 3 Marvel movies, Henry the Vth (Prince Hal) in The Hollow Crown, I've seen him as a teenager getting high and driving a car through Italy, I've seen him as a soldier buying a horse in Yorkshire, I've seen him as a young detective in Sweden, I've seen him as the son of a Suburban Gangster type and I've heard him read stories in one of the most delicious American accents I've ever heard an Englishman do.

For another the man is extremely kind to his fans. He's never blown up at them. When they were taken in by a scammer he apologized to them. He's been incredibly sweet and supportive and I've never seen a single fan say anything about him that wasn't truly positive after interacting with him. He acted with such happiness when his fans (in his name) donated to Unicef but at the same time managed to keep it about Unicef.

He's an all around likable person.

(But that's just my impression/opinion and I've never met him - although his birthday is on the 9th of Feb and mine is on the 8th which I've always liked).

Honestly, I didn't think too much about him until he showed up onstage at Comicon, commanding as Loki.

What do you think of Tom Hiddleston?

In my book, 2nd only to Chris Hemsworth. Love his acting! Brilliant! And love him in interviews, etc. I think Marvel is passing up a golden opportunity for big box office by not giving him a solo Loki movie. I think Marvel fans would pour in to see it.
