Hi,yes I like Benedict Cumberbatch.Not just like,I really admire him.Initially,I did not get the hype around him.Then,on a friend's recommendation,I decided to watch the Sherlock series.After watching all the episodes,I realised that he really puts his heart & soul into whatever he does!And despite all of his success,he is really humble.Benedict Cumberbatch is a really good actor!

He is not a good actor.He is a great one.I don't like him ...I sincerely adore him .

He is one of the most humble actors in my opinion who tries his best to contribute everything he could in every character he plays.His portrayal of Sherlock in the series of the same name was so mesmerising and unique that you would definitely appreciate him and same was his performance in Dr strange and imitation games .

That was my opinion.See for yourself and let's see if we agree or not Cheers!!

Since you've neither seen his shows or movies, it would be pretty hard to explain to you why we love him so much.

Just to give you an idea-

- He has done numerous films, theater, television shows, radio shows, narrated documentaries for National geographic and Discovery.
- He is hands-down one of the best actors Hollywood has ever seen. This reason is enough by itself, but it isn't the only one. Scroll down for more cumberawesomeness.

The Imitation game,

- 12 years a slave,

- Star trek,

- Sherlock etc.

- You can't ignore the fact that he is drop-dead gorgeous.

- He has a rare condition called Heterochromia iridia, due to which his eyes change from green to blue. Yup!

- He is a rather talented artist. He attended Harrow school on an arts scholarship and worked on huge oil paintings in his spare time. He donates his paintings for charity.
- David Tennant, Bruce Willis, Chewbacca... is there anyone Benedict can't impersonate? His most revered impression is Alan Rickman, who he voiced as his Harry Potter character Snape in The Simpsons episode 'Love is a Many-Splintered Thing'. Alan Rickman-off with Benedict Cumberbatch and Jimmy Fallon \(Late Night with Jimmy Fallon ￼\)
- He is set to receive of the most prestigious titles an actor can get: CBE. guess what? at the age of just 38 !
- He announced his engagement like this-

- He is big at charity, supports LGBT rights and identifies himself as a feminist.

So you can't really blame us ;)

Related Do you think Benedict Cumberbatch is attractive?

The problem with Benedict Cumberbatch's attractiveness is that it isn't skin deep. He isn't the handsomest man in the room, yet all eyes are fixed on him. It's tough to put a finger on it, because you're gonna need a few fingers for this.

1. His immense talent. Watch him in any role and you'll immediately get the feeling that this is no ordinary actor at work. He boldly commits himself to any character served up to him.
 2. Projection. Mr Cumberbatch himself credits his popularity to character projection, as he plays the superhuman, super confident, super talking Sherlock Holmes on screen, people tend to assume he is actually Holmes. To be able to portray a character that is larger than life such as Holmes, people automatically assumes he is somewhat like that in real life too.
 3. His real person. When we peel back the ultra cool Sherlock front, we are surprised to see a well-mannered, down to earth, self-deprecating, charismatic man whose fame hasn't gotten into his head. He's very humble about his talent, and he's incredibly hardworking. A confident alpha male with a gentle side who respects and treats his fans graciously. Any girl would fall for that.
 4. The British accent. No need to elaborate on this one.
 5. That voice. Caitlin Moran aptly described it as 'a jaguar hiding in a cello'. It's eargasmic, what a wonderful tool to utilize in his craft.
- Well I could really go on and on but I think I'll leave the honor to Tumblr. If you could just take a trip down that lane...Benedict lords over the people there.

ran events, where one would expect an actor to be like that, but also from people who've run into him on the street and asked for a pic and autograph -- times when you might expect an actor to want to be left alone. Additionally, in pretty much any print article or interview, the journalist/interviewer almost always makes some comment about how well-mannered, polite, nice, kind, etc. he was during said interview.

List of awards and nominations received by Benedict Cumberbatch - Wikipedia

i'd say..... absolutely.

and by looking at his work in 2018; Patrick Melrose, The Child in Time and the early reviews for Brexit: The Uncivil War; he keeps getting better.

He's an amazing actor. The first time his father (who's also an actor) saw him in a play, he told Benedict that he was a better actor than he (his father) could ever be. He was completely robbed on the Oscar. He won dozens and dozens of critic awards but someone, very early on, decided it was Will's "year" so Benedict never had a real chance of winning.

Related Will Benedict Cumberbatch go down as one of the greatest actors of all time?

Yes. He will. Having studied film, and been a cinephile all my life, I can honestly say I've never come across another actor with such range and transformative abilities.

He can play the innocent, the lover, the villain, the hero, the everyman, the sociopath and the comic.

My only concern for him are how brave his choices are. But after Patrick Melrose and what he showed there, those concerns are diminishing a little.

He actually reverted to the family surname. It's becoming increasingly more common for actors to use their real names rather than stage names that don't seem pretentious.

His father, Timothy Cumberbatch, went by Timothy Carlton (his first name and second name) professionally. Timothy's grandfather and great-grandfather were both British diplomats.
